

"Sec" Taylor Referees

Final Olympic Wrestling Bouts!

ON JULY 4, 5 and 6, "Sec" Taylor, sports editor of The Des Moines Daily Register, will be in Grand Rapids, Mich., where he will referee in the final wrestling bouts for the American Olympic team of 1928.

Fans, officials and athletes alike recognize "Sec" as a sports editor who speaks with authority. His selection as an official in these important matches is a fine tribute to his standing in the sports world.

Iowans Who Will Compete For Honors At Grand Rapids

ARTHUR HOLDING
of Ames present national collegiate champion at 134 pounds.

ESLIE BEERS
of Iowa university, present national collegiate champion at 135 pounds.

LLOYD APPLETON
of Cornell college who has not lost a match in four years of college competition.

ALLIE MORRISON of Marshalltown, national A. A. U. champion at 134 pounds.

RICHARD COLE
of Ames, former state champ at 124 pounds.

In addition to officiating in these contests, "Sec" will tell Register readers about these colorful matches and the middle western athletes who will take part in them. No other newspaper will give its readers such complete news about these events, written from the ring-side by a sports editor who observes every detail of action.

This is just another evidence of the unusually complete news service which Iowans will receive in The Register's PINK SPORTS section during the summer months. The Olympic finals, Western, Mississippi Valley and major league baseball games, the Tunney-Heeney fight and other big sporting events will be completely described in the PINK SPORTS section—every morning—hours ahead of other dailies.

Read the Pink Sports Section Every Day in The Des Moines Daily Register

If you are not now a Daily Register subscriber, ask your Sunday Register carrier to start The Daily Register for you or write Carrier Manager, The Register, Des Moines. If you like, send $1 for The Register two months by mail in Iowa outside Des Moines.