

Case Wrestlers Win---Belatedly

A tabulation error just discovered has resulted in a new winner in Rochester Institute of Technology's wrestling tournament held last Friday and Saturday.

Case Institute of Technology has been declared the winner over Notre Dame after checking back through results in three weight classes.

"Bob DelRosa (Case coach) called me around 11 Sunday to say his team was short three points in the standings," RIT coach Earl Fuller said yesterday.

"He got to thinking on the bus ride home and went through his tally sheet. Sure enough, single points were missing for his men in the 130-pound class, 167, and 177.

"I called Tom Fallon (coach of Notre Dame) and informed him of the mistake this morning. He will forward his first place trophy to Case and Case will send their runner-up trophy to Notre Dame. We regret that this happened but the awards must certainly go to their rightful owners."

The standings Saturday night were given as Notre Dame with 81, Case 79, RIT 65 and Clarkson 55. The corrected standings now read: Case 82, Notre Dame 81, RIT 65 and Clarkson 55.

The tournament was conducted under an elaborate point system which awards points for such things as advancements, pins, decisions, forfeits and final standings in each weight class. After checking back yesterday, it was found that Case's John Kline should have been awarded another point for advancing to the final round at 130 and teammate Steve Huffman the same at 177. Case's Terry Nusser was not credited with a point for a first round pin at 167.

RIT's Roberts Athlete of Week

Don Roberts, a sophomore from North Chili, is Rochester Institute of Technology's first Athlete of the Week for the winter sports season.

Roberts was crowned champion in the 137-pound weight class of RIT's invitational wrestling tournament Saturday after he decisively defeated Notre Dame's captain, Gary Ticus, in the finals. Ticus, a senior, was Notre Dame's best wrestler last year with a 12-3 record.

In the first round, Roberts pinned Case Tech's John Yash with a far cradle hold at 4:10.

Don was Section 5 Class B champion while at Churchville Chili High School in 1965. He won in the 141-pound class.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts, 2397 West Side Drive.
