

Seeing a boy become a man is perhaps, for a coach the most rewarding aspect of his work. In wrestling, especially, I think, the individual has a real opportunity to face challenging situations which test his discipline, maturity, and responsiveness to others. For me, coaching such a dynamic athletic endeavor has brought memorable reward, self-confidence and a wealth of wonderful and generous friends. My thanks to all who have followed us--wrestling will, I'm sure, continue to produce young men who are eager and confidently willing to represent Avoca Central School--for me these men are extension of my family; a man could ask for no finer sons than the wrestlers which I have coached.
